

MODERN SLAVERY STATEMENT 2018

At Computacenter, we continue to observe high ethical standards in the conduct of our business activities and within our supply chain. We are dedicated to responsible and sustainable corporate management. This includes making sure that the group's practices are compliant with human rights and employment legislation wherever we do business.

Our business is diversified across our main territories and our three business areas, which are described below. These businesses are distinct, but synergistic, as customers increasingly look to buy end-to-end services and solutions, ranging from consulting to integration over the product's supply life cycle, to contracting a managed service.

What We Do:

- Computacenter is a trusted technology partner to large corporate and public sector organisations.
- We help them to source, transform and manage their technology infrastructure to deliver digital transformation, enabling users & their business.

Our Ambition:

- Strongly recommended by customers for the way we help them achieve their goals;
- The preferred route to market for technology providers;
- People want to join us and stay with us, proud of our reputation, as we learn, earn and have fun;
- Trusted as an agile & innovative provider of digital technology around the world.

We have a European footprint that matches where our customers are headquartered and global reach to support their worldwide service requirements. Computacenter is headquartered in the UK.

Within the Computacenter group, we have over 15,000 employees based across Europe, America, Mexico, Malaysia, South Africa and India.

We have developed a global coverage to mirror our customer's requirements. As a result, Computacenter source for and support customers in 70 countries. Over 6,000 engineers and specialists who implement and support over four-million users and ship 25.5 million products worldwide each year. Our extensive partner network covers field services and onsite support and globally services Computacenter's European headquartered customers

Our supply chain is made up of products and services that we use in our business; our employees and contractors; partner organisations who we work with; and IT equipment which we supply to our customers.

As signatories to the United Nations Global Compact, we are committed to upholding internationally proclaimed human rights. For Computacenter, human rights fall into two areas: protecting the rights of our employees and ensuring we are not complicit in human rights abuses in our supply chain.

The human rights of our employees are covered by our people policies and compliance with local labour laws wherever we do business.

This is supported by and is at the heart of our Group Business Ethics policy which sets out our commitment to observing the highest ethical standards in our business conduct. It also explains what we expect from our employees and how they can report any concerns they may have.

Within our supply chain we continue to work with a diverse set of suppliers who are financially stable and ethically responsible. When selecting who we want to work with, we ensure that our terms of engagement are clear and that they support both our Group values and our wider corporate social responsibility objectives.

We continue to carry out appropriate due diligence on both vendors and suppliers in our supply chain through our Group Technology Sourcing Commercial Contract Team and our International Partner Management team and part of this process is focusing on Human Rights.

Our Supplier Code of Conduct sets out the ten principles in the UNGC, which includes human rights. We expect all suppliers to abide by these principles.

The Group publicises its whistleblowing hotline both internally across our whole group and to suppliers, to enable reporting of any suspected human rights issues. There were no significant issues identified during the year.

Having been formed in 2016, our Compliance Steering Committee [headed by key members of our Executive including our Head of Group Legal and our Group HR Director] continues to report areas of improvement and progress relating to Modern Slavery and Group Business Ethics, back into our Risk and Audit Committees. Within each business area, our Directors are responsible for compliance with The UK Modern Slavery Act 2015 and all other areas of legal and ethical governance.

We continue to review our policies, practices and how we identify any risks of modern slavery and other human rights as part of our continued commitment to ethical and responsible business practices.

Making an appropriate contribution in this area is the right thing to do for the wider community and for our business and we will continue with our commitment to ethical and responsible business practices, ensuring that we do not tolerate modern slavery anywhere within our supply chain.

This statement fulfils the requirements of Section 54 (Transparency in supply chains) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and covers the period of 1 January 2018 to 31 December 2018.
